

Editorial

MSc. Xiomara Valverde Hernández

UNAN-Managua, FAREM-Carazo

xvalverde@unan.edu.ni

<https://doi.org/10.5377/torreon.v7i19.7905>

The educational work in its different disciplines is a process that is accompanied by the teaching practice, this entails having a record of experiences that involve the different agents that participate. These agents are subjects that are involved in reflective process which leads to a new stage which is research in order to implement improvements in their practices.

Thus, the faculty of the UNAN-Managua implements these improvements process, however, they are often not disclosed in any medium, so these practices remain anonymous because many teachers think they are not relevant.

It is important that the teaching researchers who implement day by day innovations, improvements in each of their classes, disseminate their work with the purpose of making changes, sharing experiences, enriching our teaching practices through the suggestions that other colleagues share.

Therefore, take advantage of the spaces for dissemination of the journals of our institution to strengthen our educational processes for the benefit of each of the participating agents of this great university community since the sharing of experiences and teaching practices strengthens us all within the framework of cooperative work.